OFFICE 212 SOUTH MAIN STREET.

McKinley has declared himself a goldbug, Reeves is the same kind of an insect and Harrison alone of the Republican presidential aspirants has a leaning towards silver. The issue is rapidly coming to the front for the great contest of next year. It will be the currency above all other questions. The Republicans will probably nominate McKinley on a gold platform and the Democrats with Stevenson as their nominee will go to the country demanding the free coinage of both gold and silver, without any ifs, ands or buts. The result will be that every southern and western state and enough northwestern and lake states to elect Stevenson will be found on the side of silver.

Silver keeps on going up as the agitation continues and it has now reached 67 1/2 cents, the highest price for years, and an advance of five cents in thirty days. This makes the "fifty cent dollar" we hear abused so much worth now about 56 1/2 cents, with a strong upward tendency. Just let silver be remonetized and the government enter the market as a buyer and the white metal would at once advance and gold decline until they would meet and stay together as formerly.

This is a great country we live in and the climate is varied enough to suit the most fastidious. Saturday, while Louisville and other cities were sweltering in 83 degrees of heat, a blizzard and snow storm were raging in the same latitude in Colorado, while Southern Kentucky was enjoying as balmy and beautiful a spring day as the sun ever shone upon.

The Louisville Critic, a Clay organ, takes this cheerful view of the situation: "Cassius M. Clay, Jr., will carry Louisville in the Democratic primaries and he will defeat the Republican nominee in this city next November 5,000 votes. The party will take no chances with the Bourbon county farmer-statesman as its leader."

A Wyoming man quotes the president as saying: "I used to be opposed to an income tax. I am now convinced that it is a wise and just plan of taxation." If Grover would convince himself that he is wrong on the currency question, orthodox Democrats would like him better.

Chicago, Evansville and other large cities in Illinois and Indiana will hold municipal elections to-day. It is to be hoped that the Democrats will come out better than they did last year. They can't possibly do more.

Even the pi box in a printing office is often quite useful. For instance the newspapers can find there the type to set up the name of Prof Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, who is to lecture in Louisville Friday.

Special Judge Pirtle has decided that Paul Cain was the legally elected Indexer at Louisville, holding that Special Judge Dodd had no right to help elect Cliff Roberts. The case will be appealed.

Louisa de la Ramee, the English authoress known to literature as Ouida, has had her property sold to pay her debts and is left penniless. She is 55 years old and lives in Florence, Italy.

Mr. W. V. Haldeman, the head of the Courier-Journal company, has become a banker and has been elected president of one of the Louisville banks.

The G. A. R. meeting at Louisville in September, it is believed, will be the largest ever held with one exception, that at Washington in 1893.

The income tax reports must all be filled out by April 15th. Have you fixed yours yet?

President Cleveland and his family have gone to their summer home at Woodley.

Will sell at a bargain my elegant residence on South Main street.

One Whose Advent All Will Mail.

The "Sunny South" has produced more and finer vocalists than any other section of the United States, and many of them have attained world wide reputations.

One who occupies the foremost place in the front rank at the present time is Mrs. W. H. Jacobus, of Nashville. This lady, whose charming personality impresses itself upon all with whom she comes in contact, is petite and chic. Coupled with a wonderful dramatic instinct, she has a voice of marvelous purity, strength and sweetness, in which is a pathos that can be felt, but which no word can paint. Her enunciation and execution are faultless and the flexibility of her voice marvelous.

This charming lady, has kindly consented to interpret the difficult role of Josephine in the coming operatic entertainment, when Pinafore will be presented, and any who are fortunate enough to hear her will participate in true musical enjoyment.

The managers whilst anxious to make a financial success (as the proceeds go toward lifting a debt on Grace church) are far more desirous of making it an artistic triumph in these days of second and third rate stars, and therefore no expense or effort has been saved to present to a Hopkinsville audience the best presentation ever put before them.

The following is a translation of Jean Marfa's reference to Mrs. Jacobus in his monthly review of musical events for July last in London:

"Since we are speaking of concerts, numerous at this moment as they customarily are at this time of year, permit me to point you to a future star of song just rising upon the horizon which I have had occasion to hear sing twice, and which has left me with a vivid recollection. Mlle. Rebecca Levy, one of the advanced pupils it appears, of Mme. Marie Ruel, possesses a timbre of voice at once silvery and very penetrating, much sentiment and an excellent method. Although she is very young, her talent, already ripe and formed, has given her a value in London similar to that she enjoys in Paris, the suffrages of the critics of the highest authority, and of a public the most critical in London."

This is indeed a very high compliment to the lady. Mrs. Jacobus is a daughter of Mme. Fleurette Levy, manager of the "Leader" millinery establishment in this city.

Rev. H. F. Williams, of Nashville, will preach at Liberty Church, near Beverly, Sunday next, April 7.

Gels for City Weighers. The mayor of Medford, Mass., the town of old rum, has appointed two young ladies as weighers of coal, grain and straw. Of course, this has made the chronic office-holders of the male persuasion so mad that they can not even enjoy getting drunk.

Don't Put it Off.

The necessity of a spring medicine is universally admitted. This is the best time of the year in which to purify the blood, to restore the lost appetite, and to build up the entire system, as the body is now peculiarly susceptible to benefit from medicine. The great popularity attained by Hood's Sarsaparilla, owing to its real merit and its remarkable success, has established it as the very best medicine to take in the spring. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, and all humors, biliousness, dyspepsia, headache, kidney and liver complaints, catarrh, and all affections caused or promoted by low state of the system or impure blood. Don't put it off, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will do you good.

Now in order to a faithful compliance with the same in the appointing of a competent and suitable Manager of said work house, it is now resolved by this Council as an appointment is soon to be made as aforesaid, that we desire a voice in the same and hereby notify your honorable body to take notice of such desire to comply with the provisions of such order and ordinance as aforesaid in the appointment of a work house manager for the work house for Christian County, Ky., for the ensuing term.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"It gives me great pleasure to state what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me and my wife. She has been afflicted with neuralgia pains in her head for six years and it settled in her eyes. At times she would be totally blind and have to stay in a dark room for months. A short time ago we began using Hood's Sarsaparilla and today, thank God, she is able

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Nunamaker, Judson, Ark. to attend to her household duties, which she had not previously done for years. My own case was somewhat similar, and since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla the inflammation has left my eyes and my nerves have become quieted. My health today is better than it has been for several years. I am gaining in strength and I feel like a new man." WILLIAM H. NUNAMAKER, Judson, Arkansas.

EUGENIE'S FATHER CONFESSOR

A Wicked Little Man Who Was Once a Courtier Church Digitory.

An Austrian clerical paper gives an interesting account of a man who, though once in the foreground of the most brilliant court in Europe, and still living, has entirely disappeared from public notice. The writer saw him at M. de Lesseps' funeral—a pale, wizened little man with snow-white hair and beard. This man is Bernard Bauer, for a long time a bishop, father confessor to the Empress Eugenie and a famous preacher. He pronounced the blessing on the Suez canal. He is by birth a Hebrew and a Hungarian. He took part in the Vienna revolution, was publicly embraced for his bravery by Komuth, then became a painter and finally allowed Father Augustine, who was no other than the celebrated pianist, Hermann Cohen, to convert him to Catholicism. As Father Maria Bernard he delivered his famous sermons in Paris, which the empress attended. He was then particularly handsome, his pale face framed by a dark beard, his blue eyes full of expression. What was admired more than all else was the use he made of his delicate, beautifully formed hands. The woman raved of him, and he soon addressed all his sermons to them alone. The empress named him her confessor, and to please her he was made a bishop. He became so much the fashion that had he not defended himself he might have spent the twenty-four hours in the confessional. When the republic succeeded the empire he gave up his priesthood, and has since quietly enjoyed life.

A WOMAN'S STRATEGEM.

Her Clever Ruse to Get Rid of the Bailiffs Was Successful.

A novel method of getting rid of men in possession has been discovered by an impetuous lady living in the Rue Thiers in Paris. In an unguarded moment she opened the door to the men, who had been watching their opportunity for some days. Finding what she had done, she tried to frighten the men by making a parade of legal learning. There were severe penalties, she said, for taking possession without securing the attendance of the local police commissary. The bailiffs only laughed at this, whereupon the lady went out to complain, as she said, to the police, and locked them in her flat. Shortly afterwards she returned with two policemen and said: "Arrest those men. They have broken into my place." It was in vain that the poor wretches declared that they were honest broker's men. Possibly their looks were suspicious. At all events the policemen, while muttering something about "having heard that sort of thing before," marched them off to the police station. Arriving there they were soon released on production of evidence of their identity. The men contemplated an action for the imprisonment, but meanwhile they have to devise fresh means to secure an entry to the place from which they were so unceremoniously ejected.

Christina Rossetti.

By the death of Christina Rossetti, literature, and not English literature alone, loses the one great modern poetess. There is another English poetess, indeed, who has gained a wider fame; but the fame of Mrs. Browning, like that of her contemporary, and, one might almost say, companion, George Sand, was of too immediate and temporary kind to last. The very feminine, very emotional work of Mrs. Browning, which was really, in the last or final result, only literature of the L. E. L. order, carried to its furthest limits, roused a sort of womanly enthusiasm, in precisely the same way as the equally feminine, equally emotional work of George Sand. In the same way, only in a lesser degree, all the women who have written charming verse—and how many there have been in quite recent times!—have won, and deservedly, a certain reputation as poetesses among poetesses. In Miss Rossetti we have a poet among poets and in Miss Rossetti alone. Content to be merely a woman, wise in limiting herself within somewhat narrow bounds, she possessed, in union with a profoundly emotional nature, a power of artistic self-restraint which no other woman who has written in verse has ever shown; and it is through this mastery over her own nature, this economy of her own resources, that she takes rank among poets rather than among poetesses.
